myReef

myReef paper has tactile properties based on the complex textures found in coral reefs. The tonalities of the pulp-dyed colours are inspired by the ocean environment – the white and grey of the sand, the red of the coral, the brown of the rocks, the blue of deep waters and the black of the abysses. myReef is well suited for diverse applications, printing methods, and most finishing techniques.

Ecological Certifications

In this product guide you will see that all our papers hold ecological certifications. These are defined as follows:

FSC® certified mix

FSC® certified (Forest Stewardship Council) is an independent international non-profit and non-government organization created to promote responsible forest management worldwide. It provides standards setting, trademark assurance and certification services for companies and organizations interested in responsible forestry. Products carrying the FSC® certified label are independently certified to assure consumers that they come from forests that are managed to meet the social, economic and ecological needs of present and future generations.

Cotton Content

This mark certifies the use of papers and boards utilising cotton fabrics and cotton linters. This certification aims to certify papers and boards that are specifically made with cotton content ranging from 25% to 100%.

Selected Secondary Fibres

This mark certifies the use of recycled (secondary) pulp fibres originating from selected materials to ensure high quality raw material which are free of impurities and mechanically sound.

Long-Life

This mark is based on the ISO 9706 standard which defines the requirements for such papers. It especially envisages a content of wood-pulp or semi-chemical pulp not exceeding 5%, a pH calculated from the water extract between 7.5 and 10 and an alkaline reserve higher than 2%.

Acid Free

This mark certifies the paper production processes were conducted in non-acidic environments. These papers have a pH value of 7.0 or above and do not contain free acids - an essential quality for life-span of books.

Elemental Chlorine Free

This mark certifies the use of pulp that is bleached using environmentally-friendly processes. Paper carrying the ECF mark is guaranteed to have been manufactured using a maximum level of derived organic chlorine compound of contents of less than 0.8 kg/ton.

Heavy Metal Absence

This mark certifies product conformity with the CE 94/62 (Concentrations of Heavy Metals in Packaging), a directive defining the permissible concentration of metals such as lead, mercury and cadmium.
